LOVE'S PLEADING.

O Love, O Love, content me! Cease from Or which in the old days our lips were fair.
What need for sadness now? All that is past, Or doth thou grieve because the hours fly fast?
Beloved, shall not kisses stay the pain?
And ease the eternal hunger in thine eyes?
Smile, Love, or I shall weep. Say one word, sweet,
And break the mournful spell on the tears fall.
What caused for tears? What burden troubles thee?
From which an hour ago thy soul was free?
I ask not more than life can give, for all Thou cannot desire is ready at thy feet.
—Love in Idleness."

THE BLACK DEATH.

The Dreadful Visitation to England in the Fourteenth Century.

In England during the Black Death's first and most dreadful visitation in 1348 it was noticed that it carried off an enormous number of the laborers in the country villages, the poor and the workmen in the towns, the monks and nuns and friars—that is, all that portion of the population who were ill housed, ill clothed, ill nurtured, or, like those in the religious houses, lived habitually upon an insufficient diet, among whom the practice of asceticism in various forms tended to bring about a weakening of their stamina and their vital power.

On the other hand, the mortality among the clergy was far in excess of that among any other class, and this can be attributed only to their noble self-sacrifice in the discharge of their ministerial duties among their parishioners. Breathing day and night the pestilential air, working heroically among the people in every stage of the disease, comforting the dying and burying the dead in the huge pits that were dug to contain the putrid corpses, the priests exposed by thousands into the same graves in which they had helped to lay their people, and before the year was out the supply of clergy had begun to fall short very seriously over all the land.

At Florence, Boccaccio tells us, "it became necessary to dig trenches, into which the bodies were put by hundreds, laid in rows, as goods packed in a ship.
A little earth was cast upon each successive layer until the pits were filled to the top." At Avignon several, almost as soon as they were seized with the sickness, "were carried off to the pit and buried.
And in this way many were buried alive." At Vienna "the dead were buried in trenches, each of which, according to one chronicle, contained some 6,000 corpses." In London Sir Walter Manny provided a new cemetery, more than 13 acres in extent, "in respect of the danger that might befall in this time of so great a plague and infection." —Atheneum.

Some of the bricks found in Babylon indicate by the stamps upon their surface an age of at least 5,000 years. The art of brickmaking was well developed at that time, for no bricks are better made than those.

Children Cry for Pitchers' Lastoria
THE CROCUS.

In sheltered corners and shady places The wasting snows of the winter lie, But there is a token of coming rose,
The tender pink of the sunset sky.
About the door of the wild rose,
The young March moon is silver cold.
Come, love, and lean on the gate beside me, And I will tell you a legend old.

A jealous wizard with whitened tresses Bedeck'd a maiden with yellow hair, And seized her form in his frosty fingers,
And bore her far to his icy lair.
He bound her fast in a sleep enchanted,
And hid her deep in a grave of gloom, Till over the purple seas came sailing A slender prince, with a pale green plume.

From the withered grass and earth above her head.

He unloosed the wreath of the snow aside And slew the wizard, whose name was Winter.

And she rose from the tomb to be his bride.

Look! There she stands by the broken trident,

Where budding sprays of the ivy cling,

For the captive maid was the dragon's prey;

Her golden locks, the prince's Spring!

Mina Irving in Worthington's Magazine.

VENETIAN MIRRORS.

The beauty and almost absolute perfection characterizing the mirrors produced in the manufacturers of Venice are mainly due, it is said, to the peculiar solution applied to the surface. Preliminary to this application the glass is thoroughly cleaned with wet whiting, then washed with distilled water and prepared for the silver with a sensitizing solution of tin, which is well rinsed off immediately before its removal to the silvering table, and the latter being raised to the proper temperature the glass is laid and the silvering solution at once poured over it before the heat of the table has time to dry any part of the surface of the glass. The solution is prepared as follows: in one-half liter of distilled water 100 grains of nitrate of silver are dissolved, to this being added 62 grains of liquid ammonia of 0.88 specific gravity. The mixture is filtered and made up to eight liters with distilled water, and 7.5-10 grams of tartaric acid dissolved in 80 grams of water are mixed with the solution.
About 2.5-10 liters are poured over the glass meter to be silvered, the metal immediately commencing to deposit on the glass, which is maintained at about 104 degrees F., and in a little more than a half hour a continuous coating of silver is formed. After careful wiping with chamois the surface is treated a second time with a solution like the first, but containing a double quantity of tartaric acid.—New York strange as it may seem, is caused from a lack of that which is never exactly digested—fat. The greatest fact in connection with appears at this point—it is partly digested fat—and the most weakened digestion is quickly strengthened by it.

THE NEVADA EXHIBIT.

Appeal to the Citizens of the State of Nevada.

(Communicated.)

Attention must at once be called to the importance of procuring funds for the maintenance of the Nevada Exhibit at the Midwinter Fair, and we take this means of appealing to the citizens of Nevada and the County Commissioners in particular, to use every effort to secure more funds to enable the Nevada Exhibit to keep up the good work it has done thus far.

The exhibit in itself is a surprise to everyone, and to judge from the effect that it has on the stranger, one would think that Nevada had only sprung into existence since the Midwinter Fair commenced. The good that this exhibit has done thus far will soon manifest itself all over the State through the untiring efforts of J. A. Yerington, capital has been interested in the resources of Nevada. Numbers of capitalists visit the Fair daily, looking for desirable investments. Many have been impressed with the resources of Nevada, and many have left the exhibition armed with letters of introduction to land and mine owners, which were kindly furnished by Mr. Yerington. It may be truly said that this exhibition will in a great measure be responsible for the future prosperity of the State of Nevada, and while it is so apparent that it is benefiting the State, it seems a pity that the exhibition must be closed for lack of funds. Remember that much of what has already been spent will be returned. The building and fixtures, and the freight rebates will realize a considerable sum when the Fair will be at an end. Much of what has been contributed will return again. What is now wanted is immediate assistance, and whatever is contributed will be returned tenfold.

The heads of the different departments of the exhibition are working energetically and deserve all encouragement, and the best way to show that their efforts are being appreciated is to raise funds enough to enable them to carry on the exhibit. The day is not far distant when Nevada will feel the good effects of this exhibit, and now, when it has almost reached the pinnacle of success, it is hoped that every citizen, with the welfare of the State at heart, will use his best efforts to enable Director General Yerington to carry out the good work that he has commenced. Nevada Day is set for May 15th, and it is hoped that there will be a good attendance from the Silver State.

WELL WISHER.

REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Mr. Dodge the Only Energetic Person At Its Meeting.

The Carson correspondent of the Silver State writes concerning the meeting of the Republican State Central Committee in that city as follows:

"The Republican State Central Committee met yesterday after a great and protracted discussion of the subject, 'Shall we hold a meeting or shall we not?' Many letters were written, many consultations held and finally it was decided in the affirmative, as there were some who showed in glowing colors what great results would follow. The meeting was held and it did nothing. No gains were shown, no speeches laid out, no addresses issued to a needy constituency hungry for sermons. There was a sad lack of 'show up' on the part of the leading lights. No Alex Wise, no Yerington, no A. C. Cleveland. The leading county in the State had not a member present. Washoe sent two laymen, Allen Bragg of the Gazette, and Mr. Dodge, late of Susanville, California. He had energy for them all, however, and showed more leadership than the Chairman, Secretary and all the committees. Esmeralda, Nye and Lincoln had no representation. D. L. Bliss spoke for Douglas, and two laymen, neither a member of the committee, represented both Washoe and Humboldt, one was Allen Bragg and the other Mr. Dodge, late of Susanville, California.

"Another meeting will be held late in May when you shall see yourself done for."

A LIVELY RUNAWAY.

Two Men Thrown Out and a Buggy Smashed.

Yesterday afternoon a lively runaway occurred on Virginia street in which buggy was pretty badly smashed up and the two occupants narrowly escaped serious injury.

E. Wills of Glendale was driving down Virginia street in company with Richard Gibble of Virginia City. When opposite Manning's store the horse took fright at some stoves which were being moved and whirled around suddenly, cramping the buggy so that both men were thrown out.

Mr. Wills escaped with a few bruises and Mr. Gibble had his leg considerably wrenched.

The horse ran down Second street to Sierra street and thence across the railroad track, stopping near the Baptist church. The buggy was badly used up.

KARL GARDNER'S NEW PLAY.

Features of "The Prize Winner"—The Next Theatrical Attraction.

Charles A. Gardner's new play, "The Prize Winner," to be presented at McKissick's Opera House Monday evening, is said not only to be complete in a scenic sense but fully as attractive as an artistic production. For this tour Mr. Gardner carries a fine comedy company in his peculiar line.

Among the many features is a newly arrived genuine Tyrolean sextette, who will be seen in their native characteristic dances and heard in their charming mountain songs, glee and choruses.

One realistic scene alone will ever be remembered by theater goers; that of the starting Alpine avalanche; where tons of snow and ice can be seen falling down the mountain side, and the faithful St. Bernard dogs rescuing the weary travelers and assisting them in their perilous journey. All of the scenery in the production is part of the equipment of the company and the play will be presented in its entirety—both in regard to scenery, plot and interludes.

The box sheet is now open at Pliniger's and reserved seats can be secured without extra charge.

AN EARLY ALARM.

The Arcade Hotel Narrowly Escapes Burning.

In consequence of dullness in railway business at Vancouver, B. C., at present 200 Canadian Pacific employees, principally in machine shops, have been laid off. Reductions will also be made in the staff in all departments.

Completed.

The work of extending the Union Drain ditch is completed. About three and a half miles of new ditch was dug. The head of the ditch is near the southeast corner of the lands of J. N. Evans, just north of the N-C-O. roundhouse. H. C. Shufeldt, who had a contract for nearly a mile of the ditch in the hard ground on the railroad right-of-way, opposite Winfrey's lower ranch, completed the work on time and in good shape. The ditch is now in excellent shape, and it is hoped will satisfactorily settle the drainage question on the lands through which the ditch passes.

Cadet Encampment.

The University cadets will go into their annual encampment at 6 o'clock Friday evening and will remain in encampment for one week. During the time, they will encamp on the campus and observe all the army regulations, keeping guards on duty night and day, sounding "taps" and the "reveille," and doing early morning and evening drills and maneuvers in true army style.

excitement—one has not seen London until he has seen Cheapside.

Cheapside is a street, and a busy one—the busiest, I dare say, of the whole world of streets. It is not long; it is not beautiful; it is not the resort of the fashionable; it is a business thoroughfare from first to last, and it has more history crammed into its short stretch than other great thoroughfares have in their combined long ones. Cheapside being not at the side of anything in the present era, but at the heart of all things, being in the heart of London, has a very important place in civic affairs. It is what they call "an artery of trade," asphalted into the bargain and affording ingress and egress between the city and the regions west. If it has a quarter of a mile to its length, it has as much as can legitimately claim, and even that includes a little slice at the eastern end called the "Poultry," a title which signifies a local purpose in the pictureesque past.

Cheapside has at one end the Poultry, but this need not be counted as a separate entity. And at the Poultry end is the Mansion House, where lives the lord mayor in gold lace state. Cheapside bumps into Threadneedle street, up to the steps of the Royal Exchange and against the walls of the Bank of England, institutions which are both useful and ornamental. At the other end of Cheapside there is a statue of Sir Robert Peel. But I venture to say that half the people who pass there every day do not know whose statue it is, and of the other half an inconsiderable fraction will have some accurate notion as to who Sir Robert Peel really was, the balance being able to suggest only that he had "something to do with the police."

Cheapside is to London what lower Broadway is to New York, between the postoffice and Wall street. Shops, shops, shops, insurance companies, great mercantile houses, restaurants, a church—Dick Whittington's—that is to say, the Buch church, where the bells still tinkle—these are the stationary ingredients of Cheapside. Omnibuses, human beings, cabs and carriers' vans are the movable ones. Cheapside is like the channel of a tidal river—at one time of the day the current sets in one direction, and at another time it sets to the opposite course.

The street has many funny little tributaries, with funny little names, Bread street, Friar street, Ironmonger lane and Old Jewry being some of these—narrow passages where in days more primitive than our own opposite neighbors leaned out of windows and shook hands across the street, while from the pavement they could scarcely have seen the sky, so closely did the overhanging stories approach to the roofs thereof.
But there are no dwellings in Cheapside now, not in the adjacent tributaries.
The buildings are all for business purposes only. The old vogue of overhanging bells has been long dispensed with, and a sprightly modern air is worn by the commercial architecture.

One kind of commodity Cheapside has in more abundance than any other place on the whirling footstool—jewelry. It may not be the most sumptuous jewelry that ever was made, it may not compare with the golden filigree work of Zarabita, but it is jewelry nevertheless and of a good sort for the moderate classes.
And there is so much of it that it overflows the contracted emporiums and fows in cascades and Niagara of watch chains, necklaces, fantastic guards, behind the plate glass windows.

It seems to be a trick of Cheapside's shops to display all their treasures to the preoccupied eyes of those who here marvel in legions along the pavement.
They pour their wares into their windows with a reckless profusion suggestive of the orient—that is to say, the orient you read about, not the orient which actually exists. The jewelry of Cheapside is mainly silver jewelry, and the radiance of the windows is the white radiance which tarnishes with such hapless result in the London fog.

Cheapside is best seen between 9 and 10 in the morning or between 5 and 7 in the afternoon, either when everybody is coming to or going from his occupation. But all day long the street is crowded from end to end, so crowded that you cannot anywhere cross it in safety, except at the points where concessions are stationed to regulate the traffic.

One of the odd features of Cheapside is the line of pedestrains who stand in either gutter, strutting along the curbs and vending catchpenny toys. These merchants are an amusing lot in their way. Their language are endless and not wholly lacking in wit, although their language is not altogether parliamentary.
They sell the most wonderful assortiment of ingenious toys that you can imagine, and every week or two they produce some new thing. Variety is the spice of their trade. The wonderful toys that can be bought of them for a penny allure all kinds of people who go cityward. I know men on the Stock Exchange who make it a point to buy every new penny toy that appears on Cheapside. Their collections have already the appearance of a lesser South Kensington museum or a glorified Lower Lover's arcade. The penny toy venders may not pause in their vending. The watchful "bobby" keeps them on the move, a necessary precaution in this thick stream of traffic. One should see these penny toy men. Until he sees them he has not seen Cheapside, and until he has seen Cheapside he has not seen London.

Besides the penny toys are the only cheap things in Cheapside.—London

An Expensive Row.

A gentleman's court dress is a very expensive affair. It costs $240 at least, without the shoes, stockings or sword.
Many men who are not members of parliament or likely to wear their suit more than once or twice hire it from one of the numerous costumers who abound in the neighborhood of Covent Garden. Their charge is from $4 to $6, including the services of the oblige-gent gentleman who attends to see it properly put on. One ultra-fashionable tailor charges $6 guineas for one wearing, but his cut is of the best quality, made to fit and of proper cut. Altogether, with silk hose, shoes, buckles, sword and hat, a man cannot make his bow to the prince at a cost of less than $10.—New York Herald.

Curing a Boiling Horse.

A horse purchased at an equine "rubbish" sale was a confirmed bolter. No sooner was it harnessed than it set off at full gallop, a career which generally ended in a smash and the immediate recall of the culprit. But the now purchaser, far from trying to check this propensity, resolved, as he said, to "humor him a bit" and generously "loaned him to a fire engine." The horse soon found that he was encouraged not only to bolt at starting, but to keep up the pace, and in six months was quite ready either to stand in harness or to start at any speed wished by his driver.—London Spectator.
